2017 CONGRESSIONAL PHARMACY FLY-IN

MAKE YOUR VOICE HEARD

April 26 – 27 | Washington, D.C.

You have a voice in the health care debate—make sure it's heard on Capitol Hill this spring

Kansas community pharmacists meet with Senator Jerry Moran (R-Kan.) at the 2016 Congressional Pharmacy Summit.

DEAR FELLOW NCPA MEMBER,

As pharmacists, we realize better than most the value of face-to-face counseling. An in-person meeting is so much more meaningful and lasting than even a thoughtful phone conversation or insightful email.

Well, Congress is in sore need of some counseling on pharmacy issues, especially during the ongoing debate to repeal and replace the Affordable Care Act, and you are the best one to provide it—face-to-face. Please come to Washington, D.C., in April for a day or two (your choice) and visit your legislators in their offices.

Explain to them what DIRs, MAC transparency, and any willing pharmacy mean to you as a small business employer and as an advocate for your thousands of patients and their thousands of voters. The PBM industry is pulling out all of the stops with an "aggressive strategy" (their words) to engage the new Administration and Congress. We have our own strategy—YOU.

Get up close and personal with your members of Congress the afternoon of April 26 and/or the morning of April 27. In response to your requests, we've compressed the schedule and reduced the price. The rest is up to you.

Best,

DeAnn Mullins, BPharm, CDE NCPA President 2016-17

HIGHLIGHTS

NCPA Sal D'Angelo Breakfast

Jayne O'Donnell, the health care policy reporter for USA TODAY and an author, TV contributor, and freelance writer, will speak on the changing health care landscape at an advocacy breakfast on Thursday, April 27. O'Donnell has covered the implementation of the Affordable Care Act and related health care issues since September 2013. She has written extensively on PBM issues and has reported on potential Medicare fraud, the Affordable Care Act's impact in Kentucky and Georgia, and federal efforts to conceal surgical mishaps from the public, among other topics.

Meet Your Members of Congress on Capitol Hill

As an expert on pharmacy and patient care, this is your opportunity to meet faceto-face with your members of Congress and educate them about the issues impacting your business and your patients. Make an investment in your practice by personally advocating for the future of community pharmacy. Please call the NCPA Advocacy Center at 800-544-7447 if you need assistance making appointments at congressional offices.
